T4T Partners with the Refuge Association

Tigers for Tigers established a successful partnership with the National Wildlife Refuge Association in 2013 to mobilize and empower youth for conservation efforts. Through the Refuge Association, we have been able to establish national partnerships, gain international recognition and build national capacity. We are extremely thankful for their support!

T4T Makes a Roar in Washington D.C.

Every year, students, graduate students, faculty advisors and T4T faculty travel to Washington D.C. to meet with Congressional leaders about international wildlife conservation issues. Our students are provided with an opportunity to raise their voice to policy decision makers to make a big impact for tiger conservation. Students gain a new perspective on the role of the U.S. government and are able to see the direct results of their efforts.

National Summit Unifies Students Across the U.S.

We bring students together to collaborate, network nationwide, and gain leadership-training experience with top leaders in their field at our annual national summit. Past summits have taken place at LSU (2015), University of Missouri (2014) and Clemson University (2013), which has brought together over 100 students from several universities.

Students Travel Across the World to See Wild Tigers

Tigers for Tigers members traveled to India in January 2014 to see tigers in the wild and experience the country's rich culture and biodiversity. While in India, students participated in a joint cultural exchange program with high-ranking park officials, community members and local high-school students with our partner Tiger Trust to discuss conservation related issues.

TIGERS FOR TIGERS

ABOUT

the National Tigers for Tigers Coalition

There are 56 tiger mascot colleges and universities across the country with approximately 450,000 enrolled students, with the potential to reach millions of tiger fans! We amplify school spirit to empower students and fans to save tigers! We ignite the inner passion of individuals who want to make a difference for our mascot, and encourage them to take action through enrichment programs, advocacy, local fundraisers, campus activities and national events. We are not only providing students with real world experiences and opportunities that assist them in future careers, but also inspiring them to become lifelong conservationists.

Potential Through College Athletics

Tigers for Tigers has the potential to reach millions of tiger fans across the nation within our stadiums. In Fall 2013, Clemson University T4T designed a Jumbo-tron ad that was shown to over 80,000 tiger fans in Memorial Stadium at all five home games. RIT Tigers for Tigers hosted their silent hockey jersey auction in Fall 2014 at their homecoming men's hockey game in which they produced a short clip on T4T that was shown to almost 11,000 people and raised over $6,000 for tiger conservation efforts.

Taylor Interns for the National T4T Coalition

After leading Tigers for Tigers to new heights, Taylor Tench of Clemson University T4T landed an internship with the coalition. His internship focused on building future T4T leaders and promoting our work in Washington. Through T4T, students build a strong foundation of professionalism, communication skills and project management. Our broad network of government and NGO partners provides opportunities for career specific training programs, internships and leadership development.

What we STAND FOR

The National Tigers for Tigers Coalition is an organization focused on the survival of tigers around the world. We embody the fighting spirit of every tiger college in the nation and it is our responsibility to save the future of our wild mascot.
